If War Vanished Music from the Sky Again: Don't Sell Short Pain and Suffering

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

THAT pact outlawing war is signed, and, for the present, nations seem to take it seriously.

Suppose the improbable should happen, and all nations suddenly abandon war. What would happen?

EARTH'S population has been regulated by war, disease, famine.

Machinery and better government have practically eliminated famine.

Science has almost eliminated the plagues that killed wholesale. No more "black death." With war gone, what would prevent growth of population greater than the earth could sustain?

Divine wisdom, ruling the earth, is probably able to solve that problem as it has taken care of others, including the most difficult, how to keep populations growing in spite of war, plague and famine.

CLERKS, leaning out of windows, looked upward; taxicab drivers leaned out, looked up; hundreds of thousands in New York city Tuesday got their first good, long look at the sky in some time.

An airplane radio up in the clouds was broadcasting music.

Longfellow's prophecy, "The night shall be filled with music," is realized with "night" changed to day.

THIRTY-TWO American railroads report their July earnings showing an increase of 12.7 per cent net operating income. If railroads are not making money the interstate commerce commission fixes it so that they can make money. Farmers lack that advantage.

WITH railroad and other stocks increasing their earnings, even usury promoted by the federal reserve powers, establishing an interest rate of eight per cent, is unable to discourage buyers.

United States Steel Tuesday went to a new high record, selling 119,800 shares and other stocks kept soaring with it.

Once more, don't sell this country short. "It hath not yet been shown what we shall be," on the ticker and elsewhere.

REV. DR. AUER, who teaches philosophy at Tufts college, says men should not seek to avoid pain and suffering, but to understand both.

That is better than the old theory that God actually wanted men to suffer.

WHEN anaesthetics were first used, some of the clergy of Britain denounced them as interfering with God's wishes.

God wishes us to suffer when we have our legs cut off, and men must not interfere with His plans by using chloroform, thus cheating the Lord, said the preachers.

AN ingenious doctor answered, to the confusion of clergymen, quoting the book of Genesis, asserting that the Lord was the one to use anaesthetics when He "caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam" before removing one of Adam's ribs to make Eve.

MEN should understand pain and suffering of course, as the reverend philosopher Auer says. But they should also concentrate on eliminating both, by scientific means, and especially by abolishing poverty.

THE best thing in Herbert Hoover's speech of acceptance, the best thing said by any presidential candidate since Lincoln, was his statement expressing the hope that by giving every man a job, well paid, poverty may be made to disappear.

RIVER BOAT UPSETS, THREE LOSE LIVES

Twenty Either Rescued or Swim Ashore; Pipe Break Floods Compartment

Pittsburgh, Aug. 30—The steamboat Aliquippa overturned early this morning while maneuvering in the Ohio river. Three of the 23 persons aboard the river craft are believed missing while 20 were rescued or swam ashore.

The persons believed missing are:

Christina Denlock, chambermaid on the boat.

William Atkins, watchman.

Unidentified deckhand.

The Aliquippa, which was a steel towing steamer, was maneuvering in mid-stream preparatory to picking up a tow of barges loaded with 6,000 tons of steel at the time of the accident.

A pipe break which flooded the forward compartment is believed by officers of the Aliquippa to have been the cause of the upset.

SAY AKRON GANGLAND TO STILL FIGHT ROSS

Akron, Aug. 30—Gangland still is determined to "get" Councilman Kyle Ross, special investigator of vice and crime conditions here.

Ross made this known today. One of his "undercover" men has advised him, he says, that unless he "keeps his mouth shut" attempts to [illegible] him, which have been made repeatedly, will continue.

Four other city councilmen have been appointed to assist him in his investigation.

HOOVER OPENS QUARTERS IN PRIVATE HOME

Nominee First To Arrive at Work: Walks from His Residence

OUTLINES NEW POLICY

Plan One of Centralized Authority and Decentralized Responsibility

Washington, Aug. 30—Herbert Hoover started the first day in his new headquarters in a private home in Massachusetts av. today by being the first to arrive at work.

The Republican candidate walked over from his home, which is but a block and a half away. The weather was terrifically hot and Hoover brushed a handkerchief over his forehead as he entered the office. William J. Donovan, assistant attorney general, accompanied him part way.

Hoover found workmen still cluttering the halls and rooms of the headquarters. Until three days ago it had been planned to locate Hoover's offices in the Frothingham mansion in R st., but a last minute hitch necessitated a change.

The home is the property of Mrs. Francis B. Moran, one of Washington's social leaders. Hoover's office is located in the large dining room on the second floor. Across the hall, in the drawing room, are his secretaries and stenographers. A large room on the first floor has been fitted up for newspapermen.

Uses Own Policy

Hoover does not plan to use the offices of the Republican national committee in the Barr building downtown.

The principles upon which Hoover conducted his vast relief operations for the Belgians and directed the American food administration during the World war will be relied upon to bulid a Republican organization which will bring victory to the Hoover-Curtis ticket at the November polls, it was disclosed today.

The policy—called the Hoover policy by his aides—is described by them as one of centralized authority and decentralized responsibility.

The plan, in brief, is to make the national committee, functioning under the discerning eye of Hoover a purely administrative unit and place the major responsibility for the success of the campaign on state organizations.

Cuts Down Fund

Hoover himself, in talks with callers, has emphasized that the state organizations will be given greater tasks and

AIRSHIP LIKELY TO MAKE LANDING HERE

Effort Is Made To Have "Puritan" Stop on Return Trip to Akron

Possibility that "The Puritan," baby blimp of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., will stop in Marion on its return to Akron, was reported today at the H. R. Mapes Rubber store, 146 South Main st., local Goodyear agency.

Efforts to have Marion designated as a stopping point for the dirigible Saturday are being made by the local Goodyear representatives and also by A. W. Wilson, of Columbus, district agent.

The Puritan will go to Dayton and Cincinnati after being exhibited at the State fair in Columbus, and will start back for Akron early Saturday, according to present plans. Mr. Wilson will be a passenger on the airship on its trip to Cincinnati and Dayton and will also be on board when the stop is made here, should that part of the schedule be worked out as planned.

Thousands of Marion county residents obtained a view of the dirigible when it flew over this locality on its way to the state fair yesterday. It was the first airship of that type seen here since about 20 years ago, when Roy Knabenshue, of Toledo, brought his small and rather crudely constructed dirigible to the county fair.

MAY WITHDRAW

Hoover Is Favored for Presidency by Prohibitionists

Washington, Aug. 30—The Prohibition party probably will withdraw its presidential ticket in favor of Herbert Hoover, it was indicated today by James A. Edgerton, vice presidential nominee.

A decision will be reached at a meeting in Chicago tomorrow.

Edgerton accepted the nomination in ceremonies held on the lawn of his home in Virginia last night. He declared both parties had "crucified" prohibition, but said as between the two major candidates, Hoover must be accepted by the Prohibitionists.

British Golfers Hold Lead at Third Hole

Chicago, Aug. 30—Bobby Jones of Atlanta, captain of the American Walker cup team, and his partner, Chick Evans of Chicago, were trailing the British golfers, Maj. J. O. Hezlet and W. L. Hope, 2 down at the third hole of their foursome match today.

Chick and Bobby halved the first hole and lost the second and third.

Team No. 1, composed of [illegible] Sweetser and George Von Elm, was also [illegible] at the third, [illegible] down to T. P. Perkins and Dr. William Tweddell.

Hot Springs Ready to Pay Honor to "Joe" as Senator Robinson is Formally Notified

Ceremony Will Mark New Epoch in Political History of South

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 30—In a ceremony marking a new epoch in the political history of the south, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas tonight will be formally notified of his selection as the running mate of Gov. "Al" Smith.

The notification will be in a picturesque natural amphitheater formed by the parallel ranges in the southern tip of the Ozarks which form the valley of Hot Springs' main street. Squarely in the bottom of the valley, from a vast platform of redolent Arkansas pine, Senator Robinson will deliver his acceptance speech. It is to be the keynote of the campaign in the solid south.

Never before has Arkansas given a candidate to the national ticket of a major party. Not since 1856 has the south had a representative on a national ballot.

City Outdoes Itself

This is the history behind the enthusiasm of the day. Arkansas is here to honor her most distinguished favorite son. Hot Springs has outdone itself as a town of 25,000 persons to pay tribute to the "Joe" she sent to congress in 1902. The south is here to honor the statesman who won for her a place in the national theater of politics after a dark house of almost 70 years.

Claude G. Bowers, keynoter of the Houston convention, will deliver the address of notification at 9:30 p. m. eastern standard time. Senator Robinson's speech of acceptance, in which he is expected to outline the major issues of the solid south campaign, will follow immediately. Fifty-five radio stations from coast to coast are linked for the broadcast.

Gov. Harvey Parnell has declared today a statewide holiday. Mayor Leo McLaughlin has issued a proclamation requesting residents of the city to keep

All Details Completed in Plans for Opening Program at Palace Theater Tonight

Staff of Marion's New Playhouse Goes Through Rehearsals and Tests To Assure Flawless First Performance; Expect at Least 3,200 in Crowds at Two Shows

At 6:30 o'clock tonight Marion's beautiful new Palace theater will swing open its doors to the public. The opening of those doors will mark the completion of eight months' actual work and the realization of plans of a much longer time.

The last bit of dust was gone this afternoon, the final survey of the house made and the staff of the Young Amusement Co., operators of a chain of 10 theaters, stood ready to handle at least 3,200 persons tonight when the first two performances are presented on the stage and screen.

A rehearsal was held this morning by Manager Albert Sindlinger. The orchestra under Director Elmer Newstrom played its numbers, Banks Kennedy tested the Page organ, the projection machines threw comedy and drama upon the screen and stage hands and electricians revealed that they knew just how their equipment and lights operated.

Vaudeville Rehearsed

As the vaudeville acts came in from other cities Director Newstrom and the stage crew took their various cues and rehearsed the acts.

And, too, the ushers were put through their final paces, wearing their toppy and colorful uniforms.

The management of the Palace has forsaken the wordy and formal opening in the interest of the first nighters, believing they want to see the theater and opening program. Col. George B. Christian will give a short address, probably not more than a few minutes in length, at the first performance. That's all. Then the show will go on.

Program Features

The opening program will include a feature organlogue by Banks Kennedy, well-known Chicago organist who comes here after an engagement at Canton; an overture by the theater orchestra; three acts of vaudeville, headed by Harry Kahne, the mental wizard; the picture, "Excess Bag-

LACKS SUPPORT

Plan To Use Commercial Planes in War Not Favored

Washington, Aug. 30—The proposal of Brig. Gen. Alfred W. Bjornstad that every commercial airplane pilot be made an army or navy reservist and that commercial planes be produced as potential weapons of war found little support today from the chiefs of the war and navy department.

His idea is to build up a strong military reserve because he envisages the airplane as a vital factor in national defense.

After a distinguished military career, Bjornstad, known as the richest man in the army, retires tomorrow.

20 PERSONS ESCAPE AS BUS HITS BRIDGE

Structure Crashes into Water After Collision; Will Cost $10,000 To Replace

Caldwell, Aug. 30—Twenty passengers in a northbound Marietta, Caldwell, Cambridge bus narrowly escaped death here this morning when the huge vehicle crashed into a side railing of the bridge spanning Duck Creek with such force as to send the entire steel structure crashing into the water 25 feet below. The bus was left hanging on the buttment.

The bus rocked, barely holding a balance as the score of frantic men and women passengers climbed through the windows to safety.

It was said that the accident will result in a loss of some $10,000 to Noble county as a new bridge must be erected immediately, the bridge being a portion of U. S. highway No. 21. Most of the passengers were enroute to the Noble county fair, being held here this week, it was said.

FLIERS' BODIES FOUND IN WOOD; HURLED CLEAR

Neither Man Burned Although Wreckage of Their Plane Charred

GIRL IS WITNESS

Fifty Planes Take Part in Search for Merrill and Ronne

New York, Aug. 30—The bodies of Mazel ("Merry") Merrill, veteran Curtis field flier, and Edward Ronne, head of the Buffalo airport, were found today in the wood near Milford, Pa., where their plane crashed while enroute from Buffalo to New York.

Both bodies were lying about 40 feet from the Falcon plane which had smashed into a thick underbrush.

Neither body was burned. It is believed the two aviators were hurled clear of the plane by the impact.

News of the finding of the bodies was conveyed to the Merrill home in Hempstead, L. I., shortly before noon by C. S. ("Casey") Jones, head of Curtiss field, who had been at Milford directing the search for the bodies.

Wreckage Found

The charred wreckage of the plane was found in a thickly wooded spot near Milford late yesterday after a long search in which at least 50 airplanes took part. Search for the bodies had been deferred until this morning.

"I believe Merrill drove into the side of a mountain at top speed," said Jones this morning. "It must have been so foggy he was just flying by instinct. The gas tank must have let go and set the ship afire.

The charred and wrecked plane in which Merrill and Ronne had been riding, a machine built for Col. Charles A. Lindbregh, was located from the air late yesterday by pilots and observers in a formation of three planes headed by Jones as they were zigzagging across the valley near Milford which is the boundary between Pennsylvania and New York.

Made Frequent Trips

The fliers had been missing since 4:10 o'clock Monday afternoon when they departed from Buffalo for the Curtiss flying field, near Mineola, N. Y.

Merrill, one of the best known of American aviators, and a chum of Lindbergh, and Ronne had frequently made the air trip from Buffalo to New York and Jones, as well as other fliers, are of the opinion they must have got caught in a dense fog while over the flat ridge of the Kittyney mountains in the Pond Eddy section near Milford.

The wrecked plane was sighted by J. Nelson Kelly, one of the many fliers engaged in the intensive search. Last night's darkness descended before Casey Jones and a party of fliers and farmers could penetrate the craggy and wooded mountainside to reach the wreckage.

Girl Witnesses Tragedy

From Milford word came that the solitary eye-witness of events just before the crash was Miss Fannie Craft, a farmer girl. She said that about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon she saw the orange colored plane passing over her place.

"It was foggy," she related. "I noticed it during a rift in the fog. I was standing in the back yard. I was about to enter the house when I heard the sound of a crash. Then there was an explosion."

She tried to telephone the news to

The accident occurred when the Ford truck in which Griffith and two other men were coming from Ashley to Prospect, skidded over an embankment after striking a stone in the road. J. R. Bishop, of Prospect, was driving the car, owned by the Logan Gas Co., at Prospect.

COUNCIL PLANS TO ADOPT CITY BUILDING CODE

First Step Toward Enactment or Ordinance Taken Last Night

RULES PROPOSED

New Regulations Would Cover Wiring, Plumbing and Chimney Installation

Preliminary steps for enactment of a municipal building code for Marion were taken at an adjourned meeting of city council, last night.

The code as outlined will eventually provide detailed restrictions and regulations for all building construction in the city.

Provisions of the code contemplated by council at the present time, however, will be confined to the methods by which electric wiring, plumbing and chimney flues will be installed. Other additions to the code are expected to be made at a later date.

The ordinance committee of the council was authorized at the meeting to draw up a building code ordinance covering these features of construction work. The committee will work in conjunction with City Solicitor George T. Geran.

Urgent need of a building code was stressed in the discussion at last night's meeting. The primary object is to insure the stability of houses and other buildings and to guard against defects which would create fire hazards and other dangerous conditions.

Marion now has a building inspector but does not have a code which he can use as a guide. Should the ordinance drawn up by the committee and city solicitor be adopted, the inspector will handle his work in accordance with its provisions.

LABOR DAY PROGRAM WIDELY ADVERTISED

Many from Other Localities To Attend Celebration Here, Reports Indicate

Assurance that Marion's Labor day celebration will attract many visitors from other localities in this section of the state was indicated last night at a meeting of he Marion Central Labor union. Reports from labor organizations in cities where no celebrations are to be held stated that delegations would come here to take part in the local program.

The printing and advertising committee of the local Central Labor union reported that the celebration has been billed in all towns and cities within a radius of 25 miles from Marion. The advertising includes distribution of 5,000 hand bills.

The program of entertainment is to be even more extensive than was indicated in plans announced several days ago, officers of the union reported. Thirty additional contests for prize awards from local business firms are to be listed, making more than 60 arranged for the day.

Addison Bain, of Crystal Lake park, where the celebration will be held, arranged for entertainment of the children with stake races and a fire [illegible]. Prizes for these events will be from the Marion barbers' union.

A barrel boxing contest for men and boys is scheduled as one of the most unique events of the day.

Due to increased interest in the Central Labor union's activities, it was decided to continue holding meetings every Wednesday night. This was in effect until last year, when semi-monthly meetings became the rule.

A total of $2,550 was provided for in the ordinance, the additional sum above the cost of widening being appropriated for a year's interest on the bonds to be issued to pay for the project.

Notes to finance the project will be issued in anticipation of the sale of bonds, according to the ordinance. Work of widening of the street will be started immediately and will be in charge of the service department of the city.

The ordinance also provides for construction of necessary drains, retaining wells, gutters and catch basins and for the re-setting of the curbs.

Six bonds, five of $500 each and one of $50, are expected to be issued to pay for the project. In event bonds are not issued to provide a fund for the payment of the street widening, a tax will be levied on all property of the city to pay for the project, according to provisions of the ordinance.

The ordinance passed the council by a unanimous vote.

LOST IN MINE

Miners Wander 3,000 Feet Down into Old Shaft

CAMBRIDGE, Aug. 30—Benjamin and William Kissenger, brothers, were recovering in their home here today from effects of being lost for nearly 30 hours in Old Orchard mine, near here, and rendered unconscious.

The men went to explore the mine Tuesday noon, according to their mother, Mrs. Eliza Kissenger, who spread the alarm when they failed to return in the evening. The mine had been abandoned for many years. The bodies were found about 3,000 feet from the entrance by rescuers.

State Mine Inspector Jerome Watson and deputy inspectors made two attempts before they were able to penetrate any distances into the interior, even though wearing masks, because of the heavy gas. The second attempt late yesterday afternoon was successful in finding the men, who are miners.

RALPH HENRY GIVEN RELEASE UNDER BOND

Granted Liberty on Probation After Plea of Guilty in Local Court

After pleading guilty to charges of larceny and receiving and concealing stolen goods, Ralph Henry, Fostoria, yesterday was released by Judge George B. Scofield of common pleas court, under a bond of $500 and promise of good behavior.

Henry was indicted by the grand jury in September, 1927, but failed to appear in court for arraignment. He was arrested again several weeks ago in Fostoria, having been found there by Sheriff Deal and deputies.

Henry told the judge that he had gone from Marion to Nashville, Ky., and had later moved to Fostoria. He claimed that he did not know he had been indicted.

Henry was originally charged with larceny in connection with the stealing of hogs from the farm of James R. Guthery. He was one of several connected with a series of farm robberies in Marion county at that time

THE ensemble idea is being carried out in printed silks. Bags and ties, scarfs and sunshades, and entire outfits of the same design in silk are seen. Matching scarf and boutonniere is another combination, which Rosalie is wearing. This scarf is made of two joined squares. Penelope's scarf is held by one of the new scarf rings, which are worn with a finger ring to match. Of heavy design with triangular stone, they are exceedingly modernistic. The stones vary, although most usually are set in marcasite.

You can pay only one price for Richman's Clothes—$22.50 for any suit, topcoat or tuxedo suit you choose.

Starting next Wednesday night, meetings of the local lodge will be held every week, it was decided last night. Meetings were held every two weeks during the summer months.

Conducted at Home of Son on Mound st.; Burial at Patterson, O.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Luella McMaster, 61, who died early yesterday morning at the home of her son, Walter Franklin McMaster, Mound st., were conducted there at 8:45 o'clock this morning by the Rev. George Whitlock, pastor of Wesley M. E. church. Burial was at Patterson, O.

Mrs. McMaster's death was attributed to infirmities of age. She had been in ill health for several months.

Mrs. McMaster, formerly Miss Sarah Luella Burdett, was the eldest child of John and Mary Burdett. She was born at Patterson, O. Dec. 29, 1866. She located with her parents on the Burdett farm southwest of Patterson when she was two years of age and resided in that vicinity the greater part of her life. She was united in marriage with William J. McMaster, at the home of her parents, June 10, 1880, by the Rev. J. D. Sims. Mr. and Mrs. McMaster moved to Marion in June from Forest, where they had resided for a year.

Surviving her are her husband and son, two sisters, Mrs. Eliza Owings, of Seaman, O., and Mrs. Margaret Bower, and two granddaughters Jean Esther and Dorothy McMaster, of this city. A daughter and son died in infancy.

Konjola Brought New Health All Over His System

"This Medicine Gave Me New Life Energy," He Says

MR. CLINTON E. WILSON

"Konjola turned out to be the first medicine that actually ended my suffering and I want others to know about it," said Mr. Clinton E. Wilson, 218 Yale ave., Columbus, Ohio.

"Before I started with Konjola, I was always feeling sick and suffering horrible miseries. The worst of these was the sharp, constant pains in my back. I was also subject to such dizzy headaches at times that I would have to leave my work and be taken home. My stomach, too, gave me a lot of trouble and nearly everything I ate disagreed with me. Then I developed rheumatism and was laid up for over a month. I was just like an invalid. The pains centered in my legs and my knees were swollen. I didn't think I would evver be entirely well again.

"I decided to try Konjola and the relief it gave me was surprising. This medicine gave me new life energy and brought new health all over my system. Every ache and pain is now gone and my stomach and kidneys are functioning properly again. I am glad to tell others about Konjola."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and run-down systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their new experiences with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Stump and Sams Pharmacy and is also being sold by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

SYNOD SUSTAINS PEACE CONGREGATION

Controversy in Galion Church Which Hangs Fire Three Years Believed Ended

NAMES STILL ON BOOK

Lutheran Group Represents One of Largest Membership Bodies in City

Galion, Aug. 30—The controversy between local Lutheran bodies, which has kept religious circles of Galion busy for the past three years is believed to be at an end following the decision of the Joint Synod of the church late yesterday afternoon, at Columbus. After reviewing the case from its beginning when Peace Lutheran church of this city deposed the Rev. J. J. Allwardt, until the final chapter of recent arguments concerning ownership of church property, the synod sustained Peace congregation and declared the matter closed.

Congregation Expelled

At the meeting of the Northern District board which was held in Upper Sandusky last year the Peace church congregation was expelled from the district and their action declared "unchristian." An apology was demanded which was ignored by the church council, and immediate action was taken to have the matter brought before the Joint Synod meeting. The synod committee declared the action of the Northern district unjustified and reinstated the congregation to all privileges and rights.

The first charges against the congregation were brought by Trinity Lutheran church, which was founded by a group of Rev. Mr. Allwardt's adherents. The congregation of the church, although small, holds regular meetings in Brownella Hall a part of the estate of Bishop William Montgomery Brown and Rev. Mr. Allwardt has remained as pastor. The church will doubtless remain separated from the larger Peace Lutheran group although definite plans have not been made.

Names Still on Books

The Peace Lutheran congregation represents one of the largest church bodies in Galion and at present a complete remodeling of the church is under way. The council of Trinity church tried several times to halt repair proceedings declaring the church their property but property rights of Peace church were sustained by the county courts.

Officials of Peace cshurch state that the names of the separating Trinity Lutheran members were never erased from the church books and that, in spite of their action are still considered members of the first church.

The Rev. Philip Auer, present Peace Lutheran pastor, Edward Newman, C. F. Eise and the Rev. J. J. Allwardt were among those from this city attending the synod sessions. Rev. Mr. Auer, however, was the only one of the group having a vote in the synod proceedings.

SCHOOL OPENING PLANS COMPLETE

Kenton Board Employs Two New Instructors; Assignments Due Wednesday

Kenton, Aug. 30—With the selection of two new instructors by the board of education last night, plans for the opening of the fall term of school on Sept. 10 have been practically completed, Superintendent D. B. Clark stated today.

The teaching corps for the high school and grades has been filled and assignment of instructors will be made Wednesday morning.

Whether or not two rooms are to be inaugurated this year for instruction of the under-privileged children, instead of the one operated the last several years, has not been decided. No action will be taken in the matter until after the school year gets under way.

The two new instructors hired last night were Miss Wilma Jenkins and Miss Goldia Arn, both of Kenton. Miss Jenkins, who last year taught the sixth grade, will succeed Miss Jessie Lawrence, resigned as English teacher in the high school, while Miss Arn is to take over the sixth grade in the grammar school.

Several brothers and sisters residing in Germany, also survive. Mrs. Walter died four years ago last May.

BUCYRUS TRUSTEES REPORT TO MARSHAL

File Account of Investigation of Fire at Charles Gallinger Farm

Bucyrus, Aug. 30—A notification of Monday night's fire at the Charles Gallinger farm, was mailed to the state marshal Wednesday by Bucyrus township trustees Dorsey Beal, L. C. Mollenkopf and J. A. Stuckman through their clerk, M. R. Ackerman.

Prosecuting Attorney Louis H. Kreiter, Deputy Sheriff Fred Judd and Chief of Police Trautman investigated the scene of the fire yesterday, but declined to make a statement as to the origin of the fire, no evidence pointing to spontaneous combustion or incendiarism being found.

It is thought that the fire could not have been caused by spontaneous combustion, since the hay stored in the mow had been placed there six or seven weeks ago, it being pointing out the hay, catching fire from this cause, generally burns within two or three weeks.

A corn field located on the farm running directly up to the barn, which would furnish a splendid escape, is one of the arugments in favor of incendiarism. Another is that Mr. Filgor, lessee of the farm, who does not smoke was in the barn 15 minutes before the fire started and at that time did not detect any odor of smoke nor did he see any signs of flames or fire. Two small windows in the upper part of the hay mow, which were kept open at all times, would have a tendency, because of air circulation, to offset any chances for spontaneous combustion.

HARDIN COUNTY FAIR PLANS ABANDONED

Lack of Grandstand Chief Cause of Calling Off Event This Year

Kenton, Aug. 30—That the Hardin county fair and agricultural exposition will not be held this year, was the statement made today by George W. Schindewolf, Kenton manufacturer and secretary of the county fair board.

One of the principal items entering into the decision is the absence of an amphitheatre on the grounds, making a race program almost impossible and impractical, it was said.

"The expense that would be involved in the building of a grandstand now would be prohibitive," Secretary Schindewolf said. The original grandstand, one of the largest in the state, was destroyed by fire several years ago.

Fairs have not been held in the county for two or three years, since the Hardin County Agricultural society gave up its lease on the grounds and turned it back to the Hardin County Fair Co. The society held the fair for two or three seasons.

There is a possibility that no attempts will be made to hold a fair until a grandstand is erected.

THE first funeral time in a family brings a situation of inexperience as to what to do, which mortician to call. WITH the championship all decided, the fight in the Commercial recreation ball league is centering around fifth place. Where but one team hung out yesterday, three are in the position today.

As a result of the Marion's Star's defeat at the hands of Isaly and the Kiwanis-Silk Mill victory over the Shovel, fifth place is thickly populated.

Second place is cinched by the Steam Shovels but a fight for third and fourth positions is being staged by the Erie Clerks and Kappas.

The champion Eagles received a big scare at the hands of the Erie Clerks but won out in the last inning when six runs were scored. Four runs in the opening frame gave the Clerks the lead until the final inning. The final score was 9 to 4.

Six runs in the fourth inning gave the Kiwanis-Silk Mill ten man 8 to 4 victory over the shovel. This was the second time that the Shovel crew has been beaten this week.

The Kappas opened the switch and as a result wrecked the yard crew of the Erie, 8 to 5. The contest was called after five innings.

Although some players insisted that the game was closer than the score would indicate, the Marion Stars were given a grand beating by the ice cream boys from the Isaly Dairy. When the smoke cleared away from the battle ground the Stars held the small end of an 18 to 2 score. The contest went five innings with the Star getting two runs in the final frame.

NEAR RECORD

Second Woman Makes Difficult Battery Swim of 21 Miles

New York, Aug. 30—Sixteen-year-old Leah Riley of Keansburg, N. J., today holds a record just 17 minutes 15 seconds short of the mark set by Gertrude Ederle for the 21-mile swim from the Battery at the tip of Manhattan to Sandy Hook, N. J.

Miss Leah negotiated the distance in seven hours 28 minutes 45 seconds yesterday. Although she finished quite fresh, the youthful swimmer had to battle the tide for two hours. She and Miss Ederle are the only two women who have accomplished the difficult swim.

Ambition is wholesome and commendable, but, in order to satisfy, it must recognize reasonable limitations.

ETHEL HERTLE WINS WRIGLEY MARATHON

Gertrude Ederle Fails To Finish in Money; Takes Sixth Place

Toronto, Aug. 30—Ethel Hertle, 20, of New York City, is $10,000 richer today as the result of her victory over 53 competitiors in the 10-mile Wrigley swim for women here yesterday.

Miss Hertle's time of five hours 34 minutes and 30 seconds was about three minutes better than that of her nearest rival, Olive Gatterdam, 16, of Seattle, Wash., who took second prize money of $3,000. Gertrude Ederle, the first woman to conquer the English Channel, failed to come in on the money. She finished sixth. All five money prizes were taken by American women.

The first six in yesterday's swim finished as follows:

Ethel Hertle, New York, five hours 34 minutes 30 seconds.

Olive Gatterdam, Seattle, five hours 37 minutes.

Ruth Towers, Denver, six hours three minutes.

Jane Thomas, Terra Haute, Ind., six hours 12 minutes 45 seconds.

Mrs. Anna Benoit, Westfield, Mass., six hours 17 minutes 40 seconds.

Gertrude Ederle, New York, six hours 23 minutes 40 seconds.

Picton, N. S., Aug. 30—Leigh Miller of Hamilton, Ontario, today is on record with equalling the world's mark for the 100-yard dash. At the maritime province track and field championships yesterday, Miller finished the distance in 9 3-5 seconds.

CINCY IN FOURTH PLACE

Giants and Cubs Fight for Second Position, with Chicago in Lead

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—The Cardinals, serenely aloof from the squabbling contenders for runner-up position in the National league race are today looking down from the comparatively safe position atop a six-game lead upon the hairsplitting jockeying of the Giants and the Cubs. The Chicagoans are ahead by a matter of .0003 points.

The half-game increase in the lead of the Cards does not represent any work on their part for their scheduled brush with the Cubs was rained off the list. It was the result of the Giant-Brave contest in which the New Yorkers took another on the chin, 8 to 3, to make it seven straight defeats and nine in the last 11 starts. Ben Cantwell, a rookie who tarried with the McGrawmen a few days last spring, pitched to them and made them like it. Against him were pitted four veterans, Aldridge, Fitzsimmons, Faulkner and Scott.

Phillies Beat Pirates

Although the Pirates have won more than twice as many games as the Phillies this season the latter, with Claude Willoughby on the firing line shut out the Pittsburgh boys, 4 to 0. Willoughby's performance, during which he allowed but five hits, gave the idle Reds undisputed possession of fourth place.

In the younger league Connie Mack's boys gained a half-game on the barnstorming Yanks by trouncing the White Sox, 6 to 2. The Hugmen's margin is now down to two and a half games, the shortest since the teams settled down to the race. The win gave the A's four out of five for the series. Ted Lyons was the victim. He was allowed to stay the full game though he was hit safely a dozen times. George Walberg started for the Mackmen but, after he had made room for Ty Cobb at the plate in the fourth, he was replaced by Eddie Rommell. Where Walberg had been somewhat loose in his work, he was hit five times in four innings, Rommell pitched tight ball to hold the Sox hitless for the last five innings.

Red Sox Lose

The Red Sox dropped their fourth for the five game series to the Browns, 4 to 3, in a close affair in which the Redlegs fell just short of evening things up in eighth inning rally.

George Burns found the left field fence of Navin field easy when he sent two homers out of the park to score three runs and help Joie Shaute, Indian left-hander, overcome the Tigers, 9 to 5.

SAYS TONY LAZZERI WILL BE PLAYING IN FIVE DAYS

Philadelphia, Aug. 30—According to Dr. Charles J. Van Ronk, Germantown osteopath, Tony Lazzeri of the New York Yankees will be back in the line-up in five days.

Dr. Van Ronk yesterday treated Lazzeri's right shoulder, which forced the star second baseman to the bench a short time ago.

A "gentlemen's agreement" is part of the golden rule.

COPPER STOCKS TAKE OVER MARKET LEAD

American Smelting Goes Above 250 for First Time in History

TRADING SLOW

Fear Large Increase in Brokers' Loan and Pace of Market

BY W. S. COUSINS.
I. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, Aug. 30—After reaching slightly higher price levels today, the speculative stock leaders encountered a considerable volume of profit-taking and short-selling holding up the advance in some sections of the market and lopping off a part of the recent gains in others.

The copper stocks stepped into the position of market leaders, mostly as the result of the favorable "statistical position" of the copper industry, with increasing consumption of the red metal, declining storage supplies, and the prospect of an increase in market price of copper metal. A number of the popular copper stocks sold at the highest price since the end of the war, and American Smelting, the leader of the high-priced coppers, distinguished itself by advancing to above 250 for the first time in its history.

Brilliant forward movements were staged by the Tobacco stocks, the amusement shares, the foodstuffs—biscuit bakers, independent steels and a few of the specialties. While the old-line motor, steel and railroad stocks moved through a narrow price margin. New alliances in important companies were confidently predicted in the financial district as buying demand poured in for the stocks of corporations mentioned in the reports.

Anaconda Copper, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, Inspiration, Chile and other favorite copper stocks were in excellent demand as prices moved ahead aggressively to the highest levels since the close of the war. Hesitation in other sections of the market were due to the fear of a large increase in brokers' loans being shown in the weekly Federal reserve board statement, as well to the break-neck pace of the market since Monday.

An astronomer is always happy, because there is forever something to discover.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Scarcity of sweet corn, due largely to continued dry weather, dealers say, was reported on the produce stands of Marion retail markets today.

Only a poor variety had been placed on the market early this morning for today's business. In spite of the scarcity and the poor variety no advance in price was noted and the corn continued to sell at 20 cents a dozen.

Dealers believe the scarcity of the corn to be only temporary and do not anticipate an advance in price at the present time. The product is expected to occupy a prominent position on the local produce markets for at least three weeks, dealers say.

Many prices were placed on several grades of peaches on the market today. The best grades of the Illinois and Indiana varieties sold at quotations as high as $3.50 a bushed on some of the markets while other dealers were asking $3 a bushel. Home-grown peaches, small in size but plentiful in supply, were quoted at prices ranging from $1.75 to $2.50.

A new price was placed on Lima beans on reappearance of the product on the market today. The beans were selling at 37 cents a quart, one of the highest quotations this season. String beans sold steady at two pounds for 25 cents.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, Aug. 30—Grains failed to hold the advances made Tuesday and ruled weak and lower throughout the session yesterday. There was not much fresh news applicable to either the buying or selling side and the easiness was attributed to a weakened condition of the markets following the previous day's short covering.

At the close wheat was 1¼@1½c lower, corn was 1¼@1½c down, oats were ⅛@½c off, and rye was 1⅝@1½c lower.

Wheat lacked the buying power necessary to sustain prices at the levels of the previous day's close, for there was naturally considerable profit-taking in the early trading. However, when the market sold off fair buying developed, although it failed to follow the bulges.

East Buys Wheat

As a result prices were choppy. Wet weather over the Northwest brought in a little buying, but this was more than offset by the increased selling pressure encountered at better prices. There was also some buying of wheat for eastern and Winnipeg accounts. It was said to be against sales in the Winnipeg market. Prices on that exchange ruled relatively stronger throughout the session on short covering and buying credited to New York interests.

Despite the unsettled weather south of the Canadian boundary, excellent conditions prevailed in the Prairie provinces. Liverpool, while holding at an advance and closing ⅜@⅝d higher, was weaker than due in view of the local gains Tuesday. Buenos Aires ruled lower and Winnipeg slid off near the close to finish ⅞@1⅛c lower.

A "Trading" Market

Altogether the action of the wheat market the past two days was a decided confirmation to the general expectations that the "trading market" will continue for some time. There is still insufficient basis for new investment buying to definitely come into the market, and, with ideal weather for harvesting in Canada, there will probably not be a great deal of aggressive buying until the effect of the movement is felt.

There still exists the possibility of increased foreign buying pulling the market upward, but that factor still remains dormant. Up to the close yesterday there were no indications from seaboard of any export business having been transacted. The demand was characterized as quiet.

Corn Turns Easy

The sharp upturn in corn which had caused short covering in all the pits Tuesday also lacked the support of good buying power and prices eased off from a firm opening. Trade was only moderate and, as in wheat, the market showed a rather nervous tone and was very susceptible to either buying or selling.

With the exception of Nebraska, all of the corn states advised of favorable crop conditions. Crop reports from Nebraska were again pessimistic. The leading holders of cash corn again claimed considerable corn sold, but no details of the transactions were given out to the trade.

GOVERNOR'S DAY AT STATE FAIR TODAY

Wednesday's Crowd Largest Attending Exposition at Columbus This Year

Columbus, Aug. 30—Governor's day was observed at the seventy-eighth annual Ohio state fair today. The governor and his party spent the morning inspecting the exhibits. Immediately after lunch Governor Donahey and his staff were to attend the races on the afternoon program, where purses to the amount of $4,000 will be given away.

Despite all the heat, perspiring and the prostrations which prevailed over the grounds, Wednesday's crowd was the largest of the year and only second to Wednesday of last year. The sun's hot rays brought 145 to the Red Cross first aid tent, although only three were actual prostrations.

The Goodyear airship, "Puritan" was the cause of many sunburned throats as she floated, like a soft cloud, over the grounds on her way to Norton field, to be moored until late this afternoon. Jack Boettener, Akron, piloting the ship.

Students will be given an opportunity for the remainder of the day to purchase books and supplies for the school term.

Optional with Boards

The Prospect schools will open Tuesday and the Richland township schools will start Monday, Sept. 10. Dates for opening of the various schools of the county has been made optional with the respective school boards by County Superintendent C. B. Rayburn.

Schools of the county are expected to be closed for at least one day for the Marion county fair, according to Superintendent Rayburn. The dates for closing of the schools for the fair has also been left up to the various school boards.

New principals have been appointed for three of the county schools. They are C. A. Simblinger, for the Morral schools; D. T. Mills, Agosta, and M. A. Povenmire, Meeker.

Principals Reappointed

Other principals who have been renamed for the coming year include: M. D. Shoemaker, Caledonia; Thurl Stephens, Claridon; Charles Holt, Grand Prairie township; H. R. George, Green Camp; E. D. Maurice, LaRue; B. A. Moore, Pleasant township; E. E. Keller, Prospect; Paul Furniss, Scott township; H. W. Rodock, Tully township, and K. W. Povenmire, Waldo.

The complete list of teachers for the various county schools has not yet been announced by Superintendent Rayburn. Several changes have been made in the staff which presided over the schools last year, he stated today.

CITY COUNCIL FIXES NEW TRAFFIC STOP

George and Greenwood sts. Intersection Added to Ordinance List

Amendments to a city ordinance, and a resolution, were passed at an adjourned session of city council last night.

George st. at its intersection with Greenwood st. was made a traffic stop point by an amendment to section No. 47 of the city traffic ordinance.

An amendment providing for elimination of the word "mortgage" in Section No. 2 of the resolution passed Aug. 13 for creation of a board of trustees for the purpose of receiving, holding title to and controlling the use of the premises selected as a place of recreation for city policemen and firemen during their vacation periods, was given the approval of the council.

According to Section No. 2 of the resolution the board has authority to receive and hold title and have right to manage, control and to sell, convey or mortgage the premises for the vacation home, as deemed necessary.

It is expected that a lake shore site in northern Ohio will be purchased for the vacation center. The project is being financed with funds contributed by local business men.

Both amendments passed the council by a unaminous vote.

Why suffer with Rheumatism?

You know it cannot be rubbed away

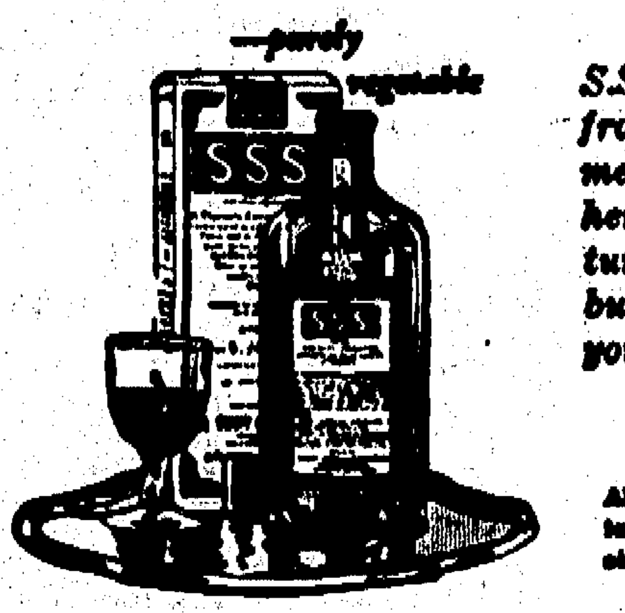
ARE you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered with rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs . . . . then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best."—Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.



S.S.S. is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

International Society makes the Blindfold Test

MILLICENT, Duchess of Sutherland chooses OLD GOLD

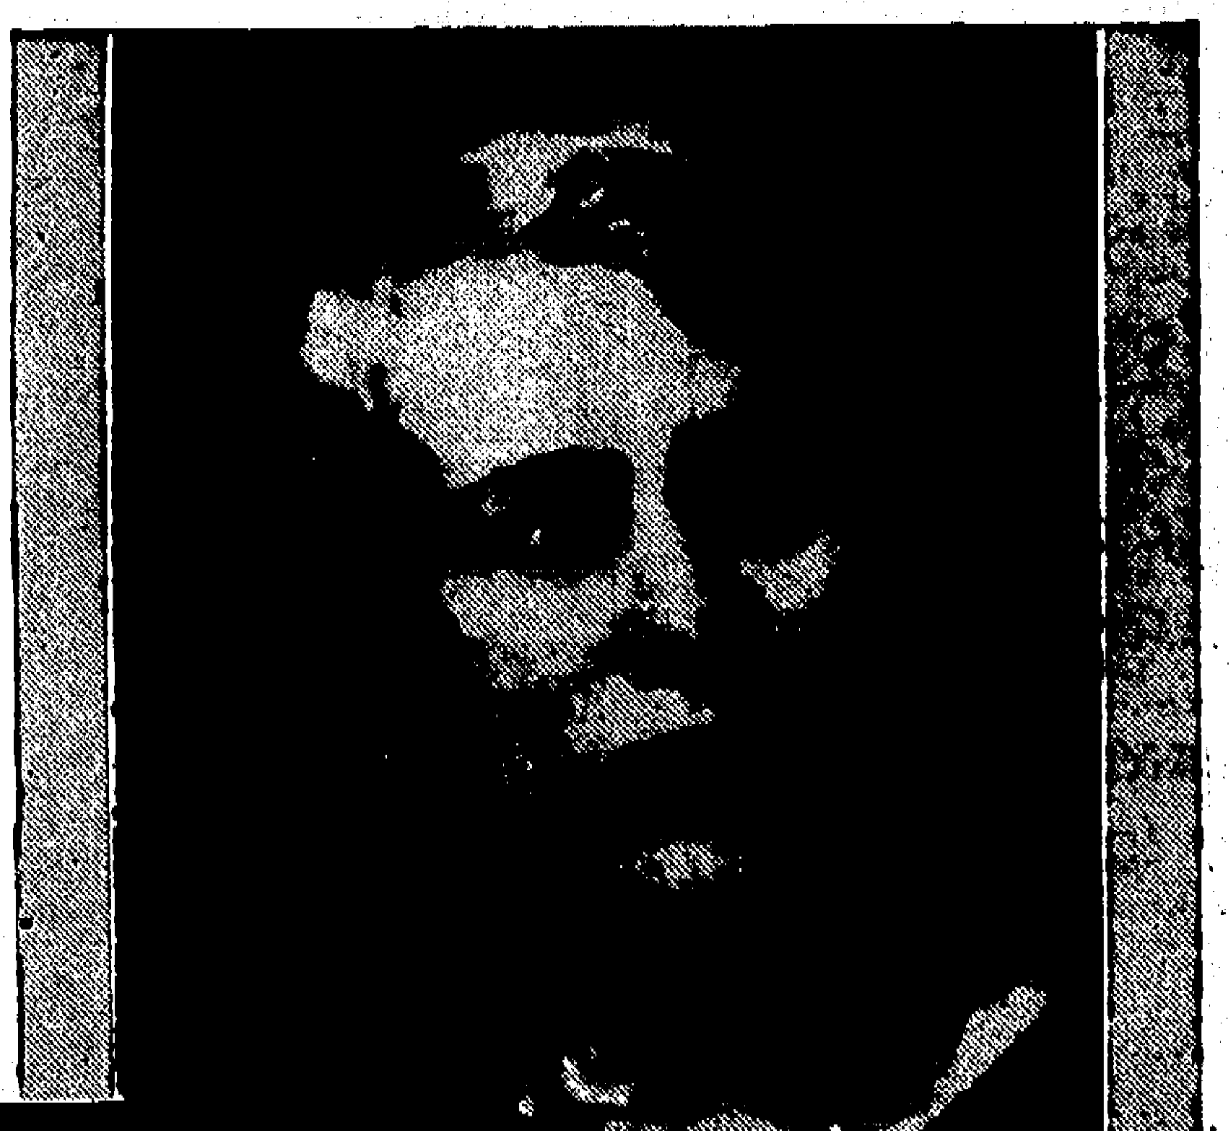
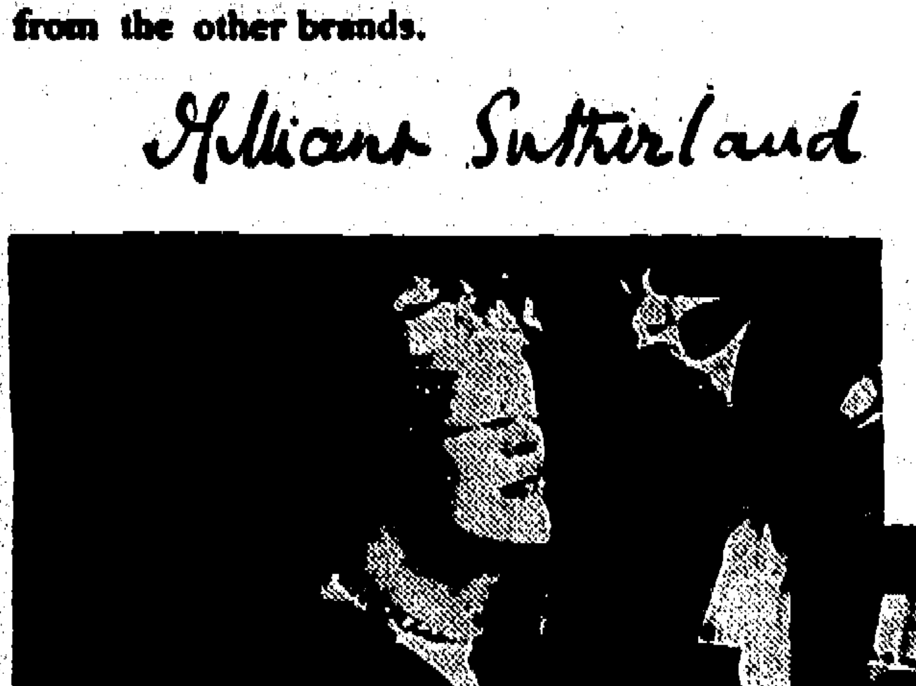
WHILE having tea with several American friends, someone suggested that we try the blindfold cigarette test, now so popular in America. I volunteered as the subject, and while blindfolded, smoked the four different cigarettes . . . each brand making its appeal "incognito." Without the least hesitation, I named Cigarette Number 3 as the best—and it proved to be an OLD GOLD. I am not at all clairvoyant, nor am I a particularly good guesser. I identified my favorite OLD GOLD, because its delightful smoothness and coolness immediately distinguished it from the other brands.

Millicent Sutherland





The Duchess made the blindfold test at La Maison du Monastère—her beautiful country place in France. She was asked to smoke one of each of the four leading American brands, clearing her taste with coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked: . . . "Which one do you like best?"

© P. Lorillard Co., Est. 1760

Made from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant

MILLICENT, DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND, daughter of the Earl of Rosslyn. She is deeply interested in social questions, and is widely known as a writer of notable books and plays. She is one of the most brilliant and active women in England.

What is this quality that tells?

OLD GOLD's honey-like smoothness . . . that's the test of it. But this cool and fragrant charm can come only from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant. No heavy, coarse top-leaves . . . no withered ground-leaves. That's why OLD GOLDS are different, better . . . why you can pick them.

HUNDREDS ATTEND CHILDREN'S PARTY

Addison Bain Host to Boys and Girls of City at Crystal Lake Park

Addison Bain's third annual children's party, held at Crystal Lake park yesterday, was one of the most successful events of the kind in the history of the park. That was the opinion generally expressed by the several hundred boys and girls who took part in the program and parents who were on hand to witness the merrymaking were equally enthusiastic in their comments.

"It was a wonderful time for every one," was the comment made by Mr. Bain.

Children of the city were invited from 4 until 8 o'clock, but many were on the grounds before 4 o'clock and a great many more were there after 8 o'clock. They were entertained as long as they stayed, though, for it was their day.

More than 200 tickets were given out for the merry-go-round rides and as each child was given his ticket, he was also presented an "all-day sucker." Every child who pinned the tail on the donkey, no matter where, was given a lollypop too. Those who pinned it where tails are supposed to be were presented special awards.

Babies, those too small to ride the merry-go-round made up a large part of the guest list. The baby-swings were operated until after 9 o'clock, to take care of their tiny customers.

The toy airplanes were kept busy until it was too dark to follow their flights. The "wonder dolls" were there, but everyone was having such a good time that the dolls were forgotten. The playhouse was filled to capacity during the afternoon and evening.

Two teeter-totters that clear the ground about three feet, proved a popular diversion for the youngsters. It was a remarkable party too, for not a tear was shed because of any physical injury, and no feelings were hurt because of failure of any youngster to get a full share of the rides.

Free coffee, cream and sugar and ice water was served to each guest bringing picnic lunch.

MARS DEDICATION

Airplane Falls at Steubenville, Kills One, Injures Two

Steubenville, Aug. 30—One dead and two injured was the toll here today of an airplane crash yesterday during the dedication ceremonies for Fort Steuben bridge. L. W. Holland, 37, Weirton, W. Va., and Lieut. A. W. Chase, commandant of Fort Steuben airport here, are injured.

According to witnesses the plane, piloted by Lieut. Chase, crashed from a height of 200 feet. Lieut. Chase's plane and two others were flying in formation at a low altitude when, according to the other pilots, they struck bumpy air. The other two planes were able to get through the danger region, while Chase cracked up before he could regain control of the craft.

This announcement, issued simultaneously in all parts of the country on August 16, met with an instant response from car owners and tire merchants alike.

No man who reads this will have failed to see similar announcements in the windows of tire stores—copies of the warranty displayed on dealers' walls—newspaper advertisements by individual manufacturers and by dealers confirming the policy.

For it is the voice of the industry, representing the producers of over 95% of the tires made in America.

It is the acceptance of full responsibility for the merit of their product by manufacturers who have learned that real quality means more to their customers than definite mileage guarantees.

Years ago these standard manufacturers discontinued the outworn practice of guaranteeing a definite number of miles in order to sell their tires.

As a selling inducement the so-called "mileage guarantee" was inevitably pushed beyond all reasonable bounds. It [illegible]

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store.—Adv.

the outside world but her telephone was out of order and has remained in this condition.

The knoll where the wrecked plane lies is in a thickly wooded section not easily penetrated. It was deemed advisable last night to put off until this morning the task of finding the bodies. It was planned to penetrate the wood by foot while a plane circled high above the wreck as a guide to the ground party.

The condition of the plane, which is believed to have exploded after it crashed, made it appear that neither pilot had a hint that they were near the ground and were flying with the throttle wide open in an effort to get through the dense fog that prevailed Monday night.

Through Untouched Timberland

The bodies were found this morning after the game warden and a score of pilots walked 10 miles through the Pennsylvania mountain district. The place where the airmen met death is one of the wildest and most inaccessible in the deer hunting region of Pike county, in a region of untouched timberland inhabited by bears, rattlesnakes and other creatures of the forest.

Hundreds of natives, familiar with the woods through hunting experience, aided in the search. Many of them carried hatchets to cut their way through underbrush and woods. Men sank to their knees in morasses at times.

Light Mountain Ridges

Powerful flood lights, concealed in the hillside pines are to light the mountain ridges which tower above the speaker's platform at either side of the Arlington hotel parkway. The governor's salute will be fired by a contingent of Arkansas national guard from the top of Hot Springs mountain, half a mile away, as Senator Robinson makes his appearance.

The platform from which Robinson will speak is in a pocket in Hot Springs mountain at the end of the street known the world around as "Bath House Row." Within five city blocks, all on one side of the street, are the 27 natural hot water baths which made Hot Springs famous. Forty-nine springs in Hot Springs mountains are the source of the city's worldwide fame. One of these springs is situated half way up the mountain side not more than 200 feet forward of the speaker's stand.

SMITH APPEALS TO NEW YORK LEADERS

Wants Every Democrat Registered; Promises Aggressive Campaign in State

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 30—Gov. Al Smith made a stirring appeal today to the Democratic leaders of New York state to aid him in carrying the state in the coming presidential election.

Speaking at a meeting of the state committee, the governor told the leaders that he would look to them to see to it that every Democrat is registered and that one of the most aggressive campaigns in the party's history is conducted in this state.

Smith's appeal for an intensive campaign was not only directed to the Democratic leaders of New York, but to the party chiefs in every state in the union.

"I consider it of vital importance that the Democratic committee of this as well as every state get actively on the job and use every honorable means to win the coming election," he declared.

He declared that leaders should use "every honorable means" [illegible]

"The first thing to be done is to see that everybody is registered," he added.

-o- The New Book -o-

By FRANCES JENNINGS

EVEN more charming than "The Hounds of Spring," which headed best selling lists a year ago, is Sylvia Thompson's recent publication, "The Battle of the Horizons," now in its fifth printing.

The new book traces the experiences of an American society girl after her marriage into an English family of the older aristocracy. The story, delightful in its simplicity, is of the girl's struggle to "see beyond the horizons," her endeavor to aid in reconstruction of economical and industrial post-war England at the sacrifice of her neglected husband.

The story ends in an optimistic note when the heroine realizes her primary interest should be in her family, and discovers, through a sorrowful turn of events, that after all it will be her children who will have the privilege of seeing beyond the horizons.

COBB WRITES OF TENNESSEE FOLK

Irvin S. Cobb, of Paducah, Ky., has written the story of his people on the Tennessee. Steam boatmen, traders, negro rousters, villagers, poor whites, pass in review, each plainly recognizable to a traveller who knows how to meet people on their own grounds. "All Aboard" is not another Mississippi steamboat story. First, because there are none of the Mississippi "characters"—Mr. Cobb does not seem to believe in them; says he never met the proverbial gentleman crook. Second because the Tennessee is not the Mississippi.

From the head of navigation at Chattanooga, down into Alabama, back north through Tennessee and Kentucky to the Ohio at Paducah, broad bottomed steamers shuttled their long way from bank to bank, knitting the picturesque threads of southern life into a texture of common interests. Now the old life is changing; gasoline and rails are responsible.

"All Aboard is a home-loving story, crowded with rich memories of the vagaries of the romantic river and its colorful people. And, because Cobb is the chronicler, one remembers the Tennessee, not only by its fires and floods, its feuds and gaities, but by such anecdotes as of the man who sat on his housetop awaiting rescue and fell off laughing when he saw two clothing store dummies float by through the swinging doors of a saloon.

NAN SHEPHERD MAKES HER DEBUT

NAN SHEPHERD, a young writer who has won the enthusiasm of English and Scotch critics, makes her debut as a novelist this fall with "The Quarry Wood," a story of country life on Lower Deeside, one of the loveliest districts of Scotland. Martha Ironside is the daughter of a ploughman who married a woman with some pretentions of gentility; she grows up in an ugly world, loving beauty, and fights for her education. When she goes to Aberdeen to the University, life becomes more intense, complex and strange, for she is growing out of adolescence. In the story of Martha and Luke, Miss Shepherd has written a most understanding chapter of youthful love.

more responsibility in the next two months than has obtained in past campaigns.

The policy is credited to Hoover himself although in talks he has given praise to National Chairman Hubert Work for the plan of operations.

This method of campaigning is declared to be the reason for a determined effort by the national committee to reduce its budget from $4,000,000 to as near $3,000,000 as possible.

Hoover personally made known this object of conferences of national committee division heads and approved it while disclaiming that he himself urged the economy plan.

To Limit Speeches

Hoover also disclosed that it is likely that his speaking campaign will be limited to three or four set speeches before he starts up a swing to Palo Alto, Calif., where he will vote on Nov. 6.

While it was said that he may change his plans in the future, it was indicated that he is strongly adverse to undertaking a wide tour of the nation and will conduct a mixed "front porch" and stumping campaign.

gage," with William Haines, and short film subjects.

The program has been timed to have the second performance start promptly at 9:15 p. m.

Theater employes worked into the late hours last night completing the stupendous task of getting the theater in readiness for tonight's opening. The chosen few who were permitted into the theater last night found it a palace of beauty as it stood complete.

The colorful draperies, hangings, lights and fixtures, all blending into an atmosphere of old Spain, make the new Palace Marion's showplace.

It is generally conceded that the Palace will, in the language of the theater, "knock their eyes out." For the present, at least, vaudeville and pictures will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday and pictures only Sunday to Wednesday inclusive.

A small number of invitations were sent to Marion people who were connected in any way with the construction of the theater for the opening performance, it was announced today. These invitations included the recipient and one guest.

Decreased Railroad Earnings.

The showing made by the railroads of the country for the first six months of the present year was far from a good one. The net operating income earned by them, according to statistics compiled by the Interstate Commerce commission, was $462,000,000, a mighty sum in itself, but $11,000,000 less than the 1927 earnings for the same period, almost $34,000,000 less than the net earned income for the first six months in 1926 and only slightly more than $15,000,000 above the net earned income for 1923, despite the fact that the railroads during the last five years have expended almost $4,000,000,000 of new capital to put them in shape to meet transportation demands.

This decrease in net operating income earned resulted in a falling-off in total earnings during the period of $118,000,000 compared with those of 1927 for the same period, of which amount the loss in freight earnings represented $75,400,000.

To offset, in part, this decrease in net operating income earned, the railroads cut their expenses $105,000,000 during the first half of the present year. Of this amount $53,345,000 was due to decreased operating expenses—the expenses incurred in the moving of rolling stock—which is a matter for commendation if the economy thus worked was not a hardship on employes. But $15,425,000 of the reduction came through reduced expenditures for maintenance of way and $35,311,000 for maintenance of equipment, both of which are very questionable economies, for it means, if continued for any considerable period, the deterioration of roadways, engines and freight and passenger cars.

Much has been said concerning "excessive railroad rates," but railroad rates must necessarily be "excessive" at a time when the price of everything is excessive, compared with its price back before the World war when labor and material brought fewer dollars, but dollars of greater purchasing power.

The railroads claimed back in 1923 that they were getting less than a fair return on their investments, and yet in the first six months of the present year their net earned operating income was $110,000,000 below the average for the same period for the last five years, although a fair return on the $4,000,000,000 new capital invested alone should have bruoght an increased income of $100,000,000 each half-year period.

It's the popular thing to complain of railroad rates and railroad practices, yet at times one is almost bound to feel that, regulated as they are, they have trials and troubles more than they should be forced to bear.

The Sagacity of Mr. Coolidge.

Insistence by President Coolidge on knowing more about the whys and wherefores of the naval agreement between France and England constitutes further proof of his political sagacity.

Mr. Coolidge no doubt has been told all there is to know about the naval agreement. In all likelihood when London and Paris say they have told him about the accord over cruisers and submarines they are absolutely correct. But that has not stopped Mr. Coolidge from inquiring if there may not be other agreements between London and Paris.

And suppose there are other accords? Are they technically quite independent of the naval program, but forming with it the basis of a new policy of cooperation between England and France? In other words, what should perhaps be asked is whether or no the entente cordiale has been remade and whether Paris and London have not agreed to look with a common eye on a great many European and world problems which are of interest to them both.

There was such an entente cordiale between England and France before the war and it bore its results in that conflict. That accord was not based on a treaty, but upon a common understanding and sharing of the responsibilities and problems confronting the two nations. For a period after the war England and France pulled in opposite directions. They pulled differently in many places, and notably at Geneva. Have they now got together again? The answer more than likely is in the affirmative. The world probably is about to see the two leading European nations working hand in hand.

Neither England nor France is making any plans to engage in a brawl with the United States. They have their attention nearer at home. When discussions take place of how England might aid in protecting the French Atlantic coast, or how France might aid in protecting British interests in the Mediterranean, these nations are not thinking primarily of America. That being said, it can not be denied that a closer working agreement between England and France does lend some potential strength to their respective powers at sea, just as it did prior to 1914.

So when President Coolidge shows an interest in the situation he quite probably shows an entirely legitimate American interest. But with the American policy of isolation, what can be done about a renewal of the entente cordiale, which, indeed, may well constitute the best guarantee of world peace? As a matter of fact, there is nothing to be done about it, except to follow out the policy which Mr. Coolidge has so wisely inaugurated—the policy of keeping both eyes open and inquiring into every possible angle of any discussion, conversation, treaty or alliance which any foreign power or group of foreign powers seeks to establish.

By so doing, Mr. Coolidge and the American state department are constantly in a position to act as the American policy of international independence dictates, thus materially strengthening the isolation policy of the Washington government and making the United States all the stronger abroad, economically and politically.

But after all, ninety-three in the shade isn't so high even in this very heart of the garden spot of the world, where at this season of the year we normally enjoy ideal summer resort weather.

Even if we hadn't had previous notice, there was no occasion for the federal department of agriculture to repeat the announcement that there will be no decline in meat prices for another year. The members of the feminist committee led by Doris Stevens who endeavored to crash the gate at the Rambouillet chateau of President Doumergue, of France, were promptly arrested by the village police and held in the custody of the police commissioner for several hours. We note that "Uncle Hiram" Johnson, our old, tried-and-true friend and traveling companion that time we went to Europe with a party of statesmen to investigate conditions over there at first hand, fairly wiped up the soil of California with his opponent in this week's primary for the Republican nomination for United States senator. It actually looks as though "Uncle Hiram" may have hit his political stride again.

Good Health Averts Ills.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A public man, still in his youth, was found dead in his bed. A stomach ulcer had corroded a blood vessel, permitting quantities of blood to flow into the stomach. The poor man bled to death. Two or three years ago an American friend of mine died in London from the rupture of the intestines due to an ulcer. From similar causes these two acquaintances passed away within a few months of each other.

What can be done to avert so tragic a death?

If you ever had a canker sore you know how obstinate a thing it is. In spite of mouth washes, local applications and even a burning of the surface, it goes on and on, refusing to heal.

You can imagine how difficult it is to deal with a canker sore attacking the surface of the stomach, or the lining of the intestines. The walls of these organs are in constant motion during digestion. This prevents the healing processes from doing their work of repair.

The result is that the tiny sore spreads and grows deeper. It becomes an ulcer of consequence and, unless successfully dealt with, it may produce serious results. There are comparatively few cases which end so unfortunately as in the two cases I have mentioned. But whether small or large, any ulcer attacking the mucous lining of the body is uncomfortable and may prove serious. What can be done to prevent their development? Certainly, prevention is more important than to wait until they have actually arrived.

Good health is the surest protection against evil effects from accidents. Most ulcers originate from trifling injuries—scratches from particles of food or foreign substances. Then there is an infection, the germs gaining entrance into the tissues through the broken tissues.

Sunlight, nourishing food and good habits will be everything. In the case of stomach and intestinal ulcers, constipation and intestinal fermentation are important factors. They must be overcome.

Good health and vigor are the surest guarantees against these ailments.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

R. D. Q—My complexion is sallow, speckled and blotchy. Small rough places form on my face, but I am not troubled with pimples or blackheads. What would you advise?

2—What should a girl of sixteen five feet tall weigh?

A—Correct your diet, drink lots of water between meals and keep the system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2—She should weigh about 110 pounds.

M. S. Q—What will clear up pimples and blackheads? I am a young woman of twenty and am greatly troubled with these blemishes which form under the skin?

A—The excessive use of powder and cold cream will tend to coarsen the grain of the skin, making it easy for dust and grime to enter the pores. Watch your diet, avoiding too many sweets and keep the system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

M. F. Q—What would relieve shortness of breath and hard breathing? My heart beats very fast. I am also troubled with diabetes and high blood pressure.

A—Have your heart examined first of all. While the trouble is very likely aggravated by your general health it would be wise to make sure that the heart itself is normal. Follow your doctor's advice with regard to diet and the further treatment you require.

A. T. Q—What will make enlarged pores less noticeable?

A—Try applying hot and cold compresses to the face alternately night and morning for fifteen minutes. This is usually effective.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

ANOTHER CHALLENGE.

The repeated attempt of Akron gangsters to murder Councilman Kyle Ross is an underworld challenge to law and order in Ohio. The rest of the state can not escape responsibility if those guilty of the crime are permitted to escape.

Ohio can not tolerate another Don Mellet case.

Ross, the Akron councilman, is a leader in the effort to rid the city of such lawless activities as give Chicago a bad name. Appointed by his colleagues to act for them, he has held hearings, interviewed men supposedly involved and shown a relentless determination to get to the bottom of a serious crime situation.

Even more important, he has shown a fearless indifference to threats. The underworld finds it can neither bluff nor intimidate him.

These being the facts, gangland acts as gangland always acts when hard pressed by the forces of law. It strikes madly, blindly; it obeys the animal impulse to kill.

This was so in the Mellet case at Canton. It is so in the Ross case at Akron.

With rifle and firebug's torch these Akron gangsters have twice attempted to murder the crusading councilman. Twice he has outwitted them. Refusing to be scared, he fights the devil with fire. It is, however, an uneven contest unless the community and state lend their strength to the man who is fighting their battle more than he is his own.

For reasons which later appeared in testimony in court, Don Mellett, the Canton editor, was left to wage his own warfare against crime and its partners until crimeland could stand it no longer and murdered its militant critic. The result was a statewide awakening and most of those found to be involved in the crime went to the penitentiary. Society was put on notice that if it expected safey it must work for it. It can not have safety by lazily deputizing the crusaders to turn the trick.

Facts so far unearthed at Akron indicate the thoroughness of plans adopted by the gangsters to kill, or at least to intimidate, Kyle Ross. The murder of Mellett was no more elaborately planned. The anxiety of the assassins to rid themselves of their persecutor shows more clearly than anything else could that he is hot on their trail.

Knowing Akron as well as we do, we have no doubt that this ugly challenge of the underworld will be promptly and energetically accepted. If the gangsters want war they should be given their fill of it. And at its end life will be more secure and the authority of law reestablished.

All Ohio has a stake in this, as it had in the Mellett case. Crime knows no geography. The fight on crime must not stop at boundaries.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SHUFFLE THE CARDS.

We do not know whether to become frankly skeptical or to take up mathematics and figure the thing out for ourselves, but here comes another report of a perfect bridge hand of thirteen trumps. It is now Mr. J. Hughes Murphy, of Baltimore, who declares he held thirteen spades, an event which the authorities tell us would occur on the average once in 158,888,000,000 times.

We find on examination that once a month is a very fair average for such hands to be reported in the New York papers. On this basis almost 2,000,000,000,000 hands should be played in this country every year. And this means that every man, woman and child in the United States must play an average of sixty hands every night. That is a lot of bridge.

Not all the holders of these miraculous hands make the big killings which imagination pictures. They usually get so excited they drop their cards. Then there was the Chicago player who held thirteen diamonds and was outbid by some one with a strong hand who went to seven spades and lost his bid only by a misplay. Within a few months another player in the same club held thirteen hearts, but made only 236.

These two famous hands were held in 1925 and created excitement and controversy, but in 1927 and again in 1928 came reports of two perfect hands in a singel deal. If this is believed possible, there are still more records to tax our credulity. On November 30, 1927, four players in Grand Haven, Michigan, all held perfect hands in one deal, and on June 1 of the present year cables from Wellington, New Zealand, carried the same story of four players at a bridge party at Auckland.

Our imagination is staggered to think of the number of hands which must have been played to enable the making of these records.

But to return to Mr. Murphy, who held thirteen spades in Baltimore. We can almost believe his story, for he proves himself a careful and conservative player. He was not taking any chances. "I played the thirteen spades out, just for the fun of it," he told the reporters.—New York Post.

Chicago's New Heavens.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Chicago, it seems, is to lead the western continent in the possession of a great planetarium—that new German instrument for the popular diffusion of astronomical knowledge, which within a few years past has been set up in many cities of central Europe, such as Berlin, Leipsig, Jena, Vienna and others, to the great delight and edification of thousands of native and foreign visitors. Rome is to have one, and I should think that Paris and London would each want one. No peace pact among the nations can be so pacifying to human passions as universal study of the starry heavens. And no books, or charts, or celestial globes can teach astronomy as fast, graphically, or as marvelously, as these great inverted domes, in which thousands may sit together while the seeming sky that arches over them is filled with the lights and animated with the complicated motions of stars, planets, moons, comets and other heavenly bodies represented with a realism, and a truth to nautre, surpassing all that one could have imagined to be possible.

There you see the reason why the moon alters her shape as she changes her place in the sky; there you see the mysterious precession of the equinoxes, which performs its wonderful function before your eyes, because the mechanism of the planetarium is able to hasten the centuries and the milleniums and in the course of an hour to carry the pole of the heavens through its vast 26,000-year revolution around the pole of the ecliptic. These terms are then no longer strange to you, but become as naturally descriptive of familiar phenomena as the words sunrise, noon and sunset.

The planetarium frees you from the fetters of mathematics, and becomes a graphic substitute for the scientific imagination. What the mathematical astronomer has worked out through generations of devoted intellectual service, the unlearned spectator, sitting comfortable under the dome of the planetarium beholds spread over his head, self-explained.

The planetarium can carry you to the North or South pole in a moment, when it is full night there, in the middle of the polar winter. Then you may see the North star shining directly over your head and the starry sky, with planets and moon, turning horizontally around you. Another shift of the dome will show the sun rising on the horizon of the pole at the spring equinox, and then slowly spiralling up the sky, until it arrives at the summer solstice and for a time circles horizontally around the zenith at an elevation of twenty-three and one-half degrees.

The planetarium also is able to show the sky as it appeared thousands of years ago, and as it will appear thousands of years in the future. It presents to you the heavens that the Chaldean shepherds saw when they watched and named the constellations; the heavens that the Egyptian priests studied when the star, Alpha Draconis, was the pole star, and the great pyramid of Cheops was constructed with its wonderful north-pointing passage, running through its masonry like a telescope tube hundreds of feet long, aimed at that very star. In short, it is possible with this astonishing instrument to present before the spectator not only the existing facts and scenes of astronomy, with the heavens appearing as they did to the eyes of the ancient philosophers and founders of the elements of science in the remotest times—in Greece, Egypt, Babylon, India and China.

These are costly instruments. Only great municipalities and generous millionaires are able to pay for them. Chicago is to put her planetarium on an island at the edge of the lake, near the Field museum. New York might place one on the rocky heights of upper Manhattan, or over on the royal palisades. There is no doubt that this great peace-gift of science will before long spread its benefactions from the Atlantic to the Pacific.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

City of the Angels.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

Los Angeles, Aug. 30—This is not only one of the most amazing cities in America, but the "freakiest." It attracts the long-haired, the unwashed and the unshod as treacle attracts flies. A benign silver-haired salvationist in sandals accosted me in Pershing square this morning.

"Brother," he ventured, "what have you done to make the world happier this glorious day?" I coughed apologetically behind my hand to hide the mounting blush. Frankly, I could think of nothing. He handed me a tract and moved on, wagging his head. Another unctious gentleman who constantly soaped his hands called to announce he was out to join the cabinet as "secretary of peace."

These curious complexities are what make Los Angeles fascinating to me. Its radio blather from health cults, soul experimentalists and Pollyanna psychologists has marked it as the cradle of Babbitry—a haven for nuts. And yet in many ways it is more cosmopolitan and worldly than New York.

Without apparent effort, it forges ahead with the certainty of a sure-footed mountain goat. Remain away a year and you return to find almost another city. It sprawls over an area larger than that of London—an area constantly tearing down and building up.

No stranger can visit Los Angeles without warming to its hospitality. It has learned the value of the friendly overture more than any other city perhaps on the face of the globe. And those who have the idea Los Angeles, like Topsy, "just growed," are sadly mistaken.

No other city has faced more obstacles or overcome them. In the beginning the sole asset was its ecstasy of sunshine—valuable, no doubt, but thousands of spots in America with wonderful climate remain dreary and desolate waste places.

The faith of Los Angeles in its destiny is boundless. And this enthusiasm is contagious. I know dozens of cynical Broadwayites, whose heaven stretched between Columbus circle and Herald square, transplanted here by the movies. A year and they are wild-eyed and rampant "boosters."

Palmists, table-tippers, phrenologists, clairvoyants and sundry physical and spiritual rejuvenators swarm here. It is a paradise for quack medical practitioners. On the beautiful boulevards will be seen rose-hanging arbors leading up to picturesque cottages of crystal gazers, card reading and coffee-ground fortunetellers and other seers. On their well-kept lawns are signs with "Don't Worry" slogans traced in Neon lights. And I am told they do a land office business.

Recording all this mystic abracadabra is not a gesture to laugh at Los Angeles. Far from it. To me it is a shibboleth of tolerance—the sort of tolerance that has given Paris, Constantinople and Vienna their color and made them among the most interesting cities in the world. It is merely a "side show" and has nothing to do with fundamental civic and commercial virtues responsible for the city's astounding growth. Even the Los Angelan smiles at the array of fakery—just as the New Yorker smiles at its flea circus, wax museums, cheap Coney Island thrills and sucker night clubs.

The ice-cream wagon reaches the apotheosis of grandeur here. The driver wore a white velvet suit and cap and was as black as the ace of spades—thus creating the effect of a stick of licorice in a bowl of ice cream.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Even the best flying men keep their feet on the ground, figuratively speaking. Captain Dewar, British aviation expert, says commercial aviation has about reached its limit of development. He points out that a hundred tons of freight, carried easily on a train, would require twenty or thirty planes, while a tramp steamer of no great size, can carry as much freight as hundreds of planes. In other words he does not see how commercial aviation can pay its way. Any enterprise which can not pay its way can not come into popular use.

It is to be said, however, is it not, that the air mail alone justifies the use of planes? And the small, light, comparatively inexpensive passenger plane is surely practical. Despite the fact that aviation, like everything else new, has suffered at the hands of thoughtless enthusiasts, there is plenty of future for flying.

American athletes always show up well in international contests, such as the Olympic games. The reason seems fairly simple. It is probably due to the compulsory physical training found in practically all American colleges. Young men in college are made to exercise their bodies, run on gymnasium tracks and do many things against which their lazy dispositions rebel. When physical endurance is called for later in life they get their reward.

Why is it that we think it is all right to make a boy take physical exercise and live up to the rules of physical health, but many think it is all wrnog to give a young person any moral or mental discipline. Many so-called modern thinkers think it all right to let yourself go morally and mentally. They argue against restraint and repression. If compulsory physical training is good for the body, compulsory moral discipline is good for the mind and heart. Lack of restraint is all wrong in any line.

Wedding Solemnized at St. Mary's Church

The Rev. Father F. X. Cotter performed the wedding ceremony at low nuptial mass at 7:30 o'clock this morning in St. Mary's Catholic church, uniting Miss Mary Druzbacky and Bernard Cusick. Palms and baskets of gladiola, dahlias and old-fashioned garden flowers were arranged at the altar.

The bride was lovely in all-over white lace robe de style gown, with a large tulle bow and spray of orange blossoms at the left side. The dress was worn with a slip of white maline trimmed with bands of white satin ribbon over a white satin costume slip. Her long tulle veil was worn cap fashion, and was held with a wreath of orange blossoms. In place of a bridal bouquet, she carried a white satin prayer book from which shower ribbons of white satin tied with tiny white flowers fell.

Miss Catherine Cusick, sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride as bridesmaid. She wore a shell pink crepe Elizabeth dress made with long sleeves. The scarf neckline was fastened with a rhinestone pin, and a rhinestone buckle held a wide band which draped at the waist and fell below. She wore a hat of stitched pink crepe, and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and lavendar flowers, tied with a lavendar tulle bow.

Eugene Dennis attended Mr. Cusick.

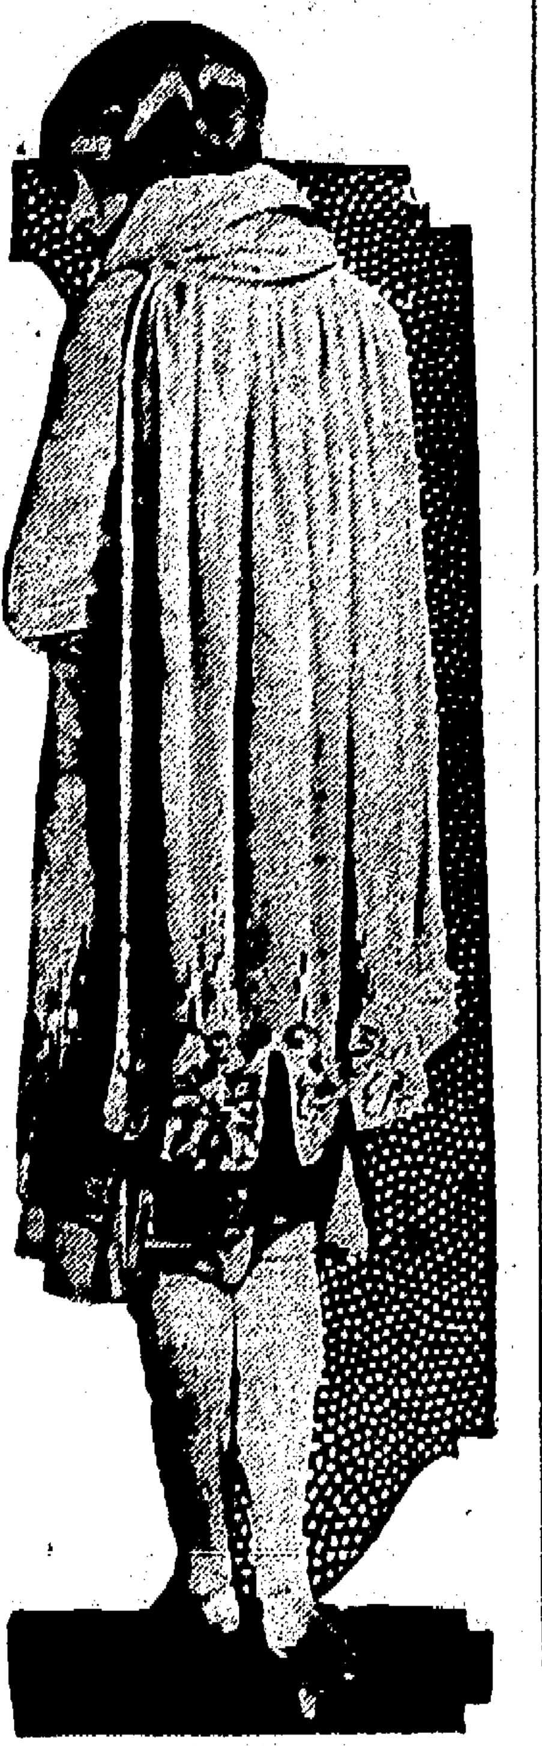
A wedding breakfast was served to the immediate wedding party at the Hotel Harding, after which Mr. and Mrs. Cuisck left on a motor trip through the South. Mrs. Cusick wore a two-piece Havana brown satin dress, trimmed with bands of brown crepe. Her hat was of lighter brown felt with a narrow band of brown to match the dress.

Mr. Cusick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cusick, Rose av., and Mrs. Cusick has made her home for a number of years with Dr. and and Mrs. Jesse Swank, of Dayton. Dr. Swank was formerly pastor of Epworth M. E. church. Mr. Cusick is employed with the Lakeside Biscuit Co.

Upon their return they will be at home on East Center st.

Ambition is sometimes only a nightmare preceded by disturbed slumber and followed by a rude awakening.

VELVET FOR EVENING



For formal wear the standup shawl collar of soft sheer velvet may take the place of the fur. One of its smartest versions appears in this shaded rose chiffon velvet cape, worn by Blanche Le Clair, movie actress. The cape is weighted down by an elaborate border of cut steel beads on the scalloped edge. Silver pumps match the bead trimming.

You Need More Than a Smile

By Edna Wallace Hopper

It's pleasant to know that your glistening white teeth fascinate and allure. But we who make an earnest study of health and youth preservation demand more than cleanliness. The enamel and gums must be protected.

To assure the greatest precaution against wearing away of precious enamel I have had to understand personally the effects of the various ingredients of the tooth paste I use, which is called Quindent, the "five-in-one" dentifrice.

I am convinced that it not only cleanses and polishes the teeth perfectly, but it purifies the breath and, above all, counteracts the ever-present acids. This last protection is due to one of its most valuable properties—milk of magnesia, which I used to use separately as a mouth wash before expert scientists had produced Quindent.

Quindent is not a biting, sharp dentifrice. Its action is sure and mild. The taste is pleasant and I advise you to leave a slight coating of it on the gums and tongue which is effective for hours.

You can obtain Quindent at any toilet counter, 50 cents for a large tube.—Adv.

Put An End To Eczema Tortured Skin

Remedy That Costs But Little At Any Drug Store Never Disappoints

When your skin itches and is fiery and eczema tortures you night and day why not go to your druggist and get a 35 cent box of Peterson's Ointment?

For many years its mighty healing power has been of great benefit to sufferers from eczema and we are sure that one box will prove it to you.

Read what Temple Carter of Gary, Ind., writes—It proves what a blessing Peterson's Ointment is for skin troubles. "My whole face was ruined with livid splashes, blackheads and patches. I could get no relief from anything I used. After using the sample box of Peterson's Ointment the ugly skin began to disappear, so I got a box from my druggist. My skin is now like glass, smooth and clear, and I look like I did 15 years ago. With pleasure you are permitted to publish these wonderful results. I cannot praise Peterson's Ointment enough. I hope this will help all skin sufferers."—Adv.

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Woman's Easiest Job

The old-fashioned girl may have won men with flattery; but the feat of a modern girl's life is to avoid flattering them.

No matter what you do or say, a man, in his childlike innocence, always takes it as a compliment. He is the world's greatest optimist!

He is complimented if you tell him that you trust him—and positively thrilled if you tell him that he's "dangerous."

He is frankly flattered if you say that you like to dance with him—and secretly flattered if you prefer to "sit out" the dances with him.

* * *

He is flattered if you look up to him and lean on him—and equally flattered if you baby him and mother him.

If you telephone him, you are "running after him"—and if you never telephone him, you are "just playing a waiting game."

He is flattered if you applaud him for his generosity and kindness—and more flattered if you reproach him for his "cruelty and neglect."

* * *

It always pleases him to be told that he has nice, honest eyes—and it positively delights him to be told that his eyes are wicked and inscrutable.

* * *

If nature gave him curly hair, he is grateful for the gift—but if she didn't, he thanks Heaven for the escape!

NOTHING can shake his aplomb or his self-complacency!

He is flattered if you are pleasant to him—and more flattered if you quarrel with him.

* * *

If you let him kiss you, he takes it for granted that it is because you found him irresistible—and if you don't, he suspects that you are practicing great self-denial or "just putting up a bluff."

* * *

If you admire him in evening clothes, he is highly complimented—but if you tell him that you prefer him in sport clothes, he takes it as a tribute to his manly type of beauty.

A woman is constantly asking a man "WHY" he loves her; but the only time when a man asks a woman "why," is when she says that she DOESN'T love him. That is the world's only mystery, to HIM!

* * *

He can swallow your flattery straight or diluted, without blinking. Sarcasm and raillery roll right off his vanity like water off a slicker. Nothing penetrates, except the cheers and applause!

Follow Scientific Methods Used by Great Hotels and Hospitals

For years lye has rested upon the pantry shelf. Used just once in a while for cleaning grease from drain pipes or discoloration from bathtubs. Women were afraid to use it because it dried the skin on their hands. Yet they knew it melted grease like snow from a hot stove. It was the most powerful cleaner, yet the least used.

But lately women have followed the scientific efficiency of hotels and hospitals. They keep their hands out of the cleaning water, put lye in it and rinse the greasiest broiler or pot clean in ten seconds with the quick swish of a long-handled mop.

Red Seal Lye is the best because it is 97% pure—the purest, fastest acting, most economical. Its pure crystals pour from its handy can as easily as salt or sugar.

Don't scour another pot or pan. Write "Red Seal Lye" on your grocery list now—while you are thinking about it. Save this article—to show your friends.

e Heart Story of a Womans Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

the revelation that Hugh Grant- nd was sending a monthly allow- o Jack Leslie to keep him inde- y in Australia, I was for the mo- incapable of speech or motion. s only another instance of the , careful guard which this man ars had kept over my life, re- g from my pathway anything spelled danger to me or to any- ar to me.

him also was the stipulation made to Lillian that I was not w of this disposition of Leslie it became absolutely necessary. during the years of our friend- ad Hugh Grantland been other elf-effacing in what I know is a nd hopeless love for me. Only ad he broken over the barrier raint which he had set upon . As vividly as though the were now being spoken I could is jealous fear of my work with Veritzen pouring out in the s tempestuous cry—you leave your husband you are to me, not to any other man."

the consciousness that Lillian atherine were carefully keeping yes averted from me, I pushed age of Hugh Grantland and the of his voice back into the hold memory and battened down the . But I was miserably con- that my voice was tremulous I made my first comment upon 's surprising bit of news.

If this Janet Rawdon doesn't rom Jack Leslie, who can she lackmailer on her own account, don't you think?" Katherine rejoined. "It was almost too much to hope that no one would ever suspect Mary was the masked dancer in that cabaret. True, nobody save Jack Leslie and Noel ever saw her face, and she's never been in that environment since, but—the long arm of Old Man Coincidence, my dears."

Lillian nodded. "It's the only plausible theory," she said slowly,—"and yet—I can't make it jibe, someway. In the first place I don't believe any woman capable of blackmail could invent the name 'Janet Rawdon.' It's too—too—oh, you know what I mean as well as I do."

"And of course a blackmailer wouldn't use her own name," Katherine said.

"Of course, not,' Lillian said absently, and the next second she was miles removed from us. With her elbows on her knees and her chin cupped in her hands in her old familiar attitude, her trained intelligence was roaming over the wide stretches of her experience, trying to find some key to the problem confronting us.

With a comprehending glance at each other Katherine and I sat silent, waiting, for never has either of us disturbed Lillian when she was thus engaged. But when at last she lifted her head and sank back in her chair, we saw that she had failed in her quest. There was no subtle little air of triumph, no gleam in her eyes, no flush in her cheek, such as always mark a mental victory with her.

"I can't get it, girls," she said. "I may as well tell you that what sent me into the ether was the idea that I've heard the name Janet Rawdon and have some peculiar association connected with it, something in which Mary figures. It's all hazy—and I simply can't make it click anywhere. What I'd give for that photographic memory of yours, Madge! Even .. you don't recognize a face or name or number at first, it always pokes its head out of its particular filing case before you're through with the need of it. But I'm a dud."

"Yes, Katrina and I have noticed that," I said drily. "But Lillian, are you sure that it was Mary with whom you associate the name of this mysterious woman? I've been with Mary more than you have, and I never heard the name before in my life."

A ROMANCE OF GRIPPING HUMAN INTEREST

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER FIFTY-FIVE

THE inquest wasn't terrible in the beginning.

Gruff old Coroner Gade behind a table, a witness chair placed side-wise before it. A kitchen chair, Emily noted. A stenographer riffled the leaves of his note-book at the right.

A few whom she didn't know gathered in the small office: Kitten watchful-eyed, apparently calm, but with her hands twisting.

Gade hung his classes on the end of his nose and mumbled; a dark young fellow who kept darting nervous glances about sat down on the edge of the chair.

"Your name is Pete Mercurio?"

"Yeh."

"You're a waiter at Deep Valley Inn?"

"Yeh."

"The young lady over there, the one with red hair, you saw her at the Inn night before last?"

The darting eyes shifted: Emily felt a quiver go over her sister. The man answered "Yeh."

"Was anyone with her? If so, whom?"

"Boss, I know nosing—"

Gade fixed him with a cold stare, glasses vibrating. "Who was with her?" he thundered.

"Boss, I sink-a da Meestah Weeckert. Yeh."

"Very well. You served them liquor?"

"Well, dees Meeestair Weeckert he say, 'Pete,' he say, 'what-a da chance for da leetle drink—'"

"Yes or no!"

"Oh, yeh."

The examination went on. It was established that Wicker and the red-haired young lady had arrived at Deep Valley Inn about midnight and a sizeable quantity of alcoholic beverage had been taken to the private dining room they occupied.

The two seemed friendly: Wickert was in high spirits. They had not quarreled in the waiter's hearing. He had seen no gun.

The last service was about 3 o'cloock when half a dozen cocktails were carriad in. The witness did not return to the private dining room after that. "Meestair Weeckert not like'a he be interrup'," the man explained.

Proceedings were halted here as someone came in. A tall figure moved along the room, leaned briefly across the table. Sat down beside the coroner, gazed on the witness.

Blue eyes piercing now, lips grave. Chin high, very stern. . . .

Emily looked away, refusing the sight of Kent. She was shaking from head to foot; her whole being was a battleground of emotions. A beating, passionate hope that he would understand and believe in Kitten—the lurking fear that he would not—these twisted through her, leaving her breathless and ill.

The proprietor of the resort was called; he knew Wickert and had seen the red-haired young lady with him often. There never had been a gun on his premises so far as he knew excepting the one he kept locked in his office.

He described the manner in which he found the body after a scrub-woman had opened the door of the private dining room and screamed. Slumped over the table, arms out, blood running down the rug.

No one had touched it; he had called the nearest doctor and the police.

Emily reached for her sister's hand; the room began to blur gently. It was, she thought, like a painting over which a wet sponge had been passed before the oils were dry.

The proprietor stepped back and a doctor took his place. He had examined the body about 8 o'clock and judged death had occurred four hours previously. The shot went through the heart. No, it would have been impossible for the deceased to have inflicted such a wound himself; besides there were no powder marks.

Their voices droned on; Emily felt very weary. Now and then the young district attorney spoke to the coroner; she guessed he was suggesting questions to be asked. Why? Many things they said seemed unimportant to her What had they to do with Kitten?

All these solemn persons—Al Randall over there with his shield gleaming, holding his cap so stiffly —what had they to do with Kitten?

Something to be gone through—oh, run away and forget it. A nightmare thing. Presently she would wake up and find everything vanished. Go back to the shop, work on the movie magnate's house. Get away before Kent saw her . . .

She stirred a little, gathering up her bag. Then she heard old Gade rasp, "Kathryn Day!" The walls whirled.

Kitten was up there; she was on the witness stand. They were asking her things, watching her. Her lips made funny little movements and they were blue.

"You knew Nicholas Wickert?"

"Yes."

"You met him night before last? Visited the Inn with him?"

"Yes."

"You drank with him there?"

"Y—yes—"

Emily felt herself rising, felt the floor rock under her feet. She saw her hand go out, heard herself cry. "No! She doesn't know what she's saying—not the truth—oh, can't you see? You're no right—no right—"

She was conscious suddenly of Kent's eyes, of the profound shock in his face. In a growing dimness she heard Gade say "sister"; then he spoke to her quietly.

'Sit down, Miss Emily. This is all regular. A few minutes now—"

She sank back, cowering before the hurt they were to give. But they asked no more direct questions; only bade Kitten give her own story of the night.

She told about the woman who had come in from the veranda. She had left the woman there drinking with Nicky and had gone home. It was dark and she was afraid but she had gone. She didn't know what time it was.

No, she didn't know the woman. She'd never seen her before. But she heard her say she was out driving alone.

Emily saw the coroner shake his head. He didn't believe the story. But he let Kitten go.

Then he squinted over his glasses. "Miss Em'ly, you say your sister wasn't telling the truth? If you'll take the chair, please."

Kent was on his feet, hands pressed hard against the table. "That's illegal, Gade. You can't call Miss Day!"

The old man cocked a shaggy brow at him but made no protest. Emily took Kitten home.

In the Star that evening she read that Mr. Nicholas Wickert had been shot and killed by a person or persons unknown, according to the finding of Coroner Jeremiah Gade.

The district attorney, the story continued, now was working on the mystery of the crime.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

MY grandfather has got a red spot on the back of his neck where Annabelle Lee poked him with the hot stick and my mother painted it with some red medicine. My mother told Annabelle Lee that she will be big enough to spank the first thing she knows, and the way she said it made Annabelle Lee squinch up her face and cry, so then my mother kissed her, and she was all right again.

When I got out in the yard after letting Jubilee down and feeding and milking the cows the bunch was all watching Jubilee. The hydrant was leaking on a flat stone that is under it, because my moher had used it last and no woman ever turns a hydrant clear off, and Jubilee was sprawled out on his back on the stone letting the water drip on his stummick, and his eyes was shut and he had a smile on his face, and all the bunch was standing around looking at him, and that made my mother and grandfather and ant come out. My ant said he looked silly, and my grandfather said if she was in his place with the water dripping on her she would look silly too, and she called him a vulgar old brute. And she was going to say something more when there was a smash in the house and we all ran in and Annabelle Lee had got hold of the table cloth and pulled the dishes off the table and got hold of an egg and plastered it all over her face, and my mother was so mad that she turned her upside down. Then she looked at her for a minute and turned her right side up and kissed her and told me to take her out in the yard, so I did.

I can see that pretty soon Annabelle will be big enough so that she can take some of the lickings. I have been taking them all so long that I am kinda used to it, and I would rather keep on taking them than for her to have to take them. My mother only told me to take her out in the yard and didn't tell me to stay stay there with her, so we skun out for the pasture as quick as we could.

We sot on the bank of the creek and let the mosquitoes bite us, and then when they would be all filled up and about ready to fly away we would smash them on us, and we certainly had a lot of blood on us when we got through, and then we went and played ball till we were too swenty, and then we kicked up a dust in the road, and then we went to my house about dinner time, and my mother screamed when she saw us, and she phoned Maggie's and Youaless and Feeble's mothers and they said to turn the hose on their dotters by all means. So she let us play in the yard with the hose, and my ant was digging up the dirt around some flowers and Feeble shot her in the bustle with the stream, and my ant was so mad she sent her home. She said she believed Feeble done it on purpose. Feeble said: "Why, the very idea!" Then she looked crosseyed at us and went home and we all went with her, dripping along.
